

Pat Ahaesy, CMP. CSEP
Instructor

Pat has over 25 years of experience planning and implementing corporate and non-profit conferences and special events, as well as incentive programs. The background that led to her collaboration in P&V began first as an educator, then in the world of corporate and incentive travel. Pat has planned CME meetings, conferences, trade shows, special events as well as tours for art and incentive groups.

Her company, P&V Enterprises, produces and manages corporate, association and not for profit meetings and events, leveraging technology. To extend the reach of those events P&V Enterprises produces a webcast that is streamed live and on demand. They also manage online and onsite registration for clients.

She earned her certificate as a Certified Meeting Professional, from the Convention Industry Council 15 years ago, received her re-certification, has held the Certified Special Event Professional designation from the International Special Events Society for over 10 years.

Pat holds a BS in Education from Temple University and previously taught elementary school, tutored students with dyslexia and has taught ESL for the US Air Force. Pat is often quoted in industry professional publications, is very active in social media and blogs about meetings and events.
